FFEL is one among the three types of student loans available through the federal government. FFEL includes four components: Subsidized Stafford, Unsubsidized Stafford, PLUS, and Consolidation.

Federal Family Education Loan (FFEL) Program

The Federal Family Education Loan (FFEL) Program was a system of private student loans which were subsidized and guaranteed by the United States federal government. The program issued loans from 1965 until it was ended in 2010. Similar loans are now provided under the Federal Direct Student Loan Program, which are federal loans issued directly by the United States Department of Education.
