Mi Amigo was originally a three-masted cargo schooner, that later gained international recognition as an offshore radio station. She was built as the schooner Margarethe for German owners. A sale in 1927 saw her renamed Olga and she was lengthened in 1936. During the Second World War, she was requisitioned by the Kriegsmarine and served as an auxiliary ship between 1941 and 1943. In 1953, the ship was again lengthened to 133 feet 9 inches. In 1959, she was sold for conversion to a floating radio

Mi amigo the story of Sheffield's flying fortress ...

The Mi Amigo Disaster. Its an incredible story; one of a man who has single-handedly been tending to a park memorial to a US Bomber plane crash for decades. The troubled plane — returning from a World War 2 operation — crash-landed in Sheffield's Endcliffe Park. The pilot had avoided an 8-year-old Foulds and his friends, who were playing in the park.

Did Tony Foulds Lie About Mi Amigo? • The Sheffield Guide
Radio Mi Amigo was the brainchild of Belgian businessman Sylvain Tack, who had seen the success of Radio Atlantis and had arranged to hire the same air time from Radio Caroline. The station established offices and landbased studios above a record shop in Breda, Holland and used a box number in Hilversum for listeners' requests and letters.

Radio Mi Amigo History

Mi Amigo should be the main focus, and though it has always been a sad yet uplifting tale, it never needed a nice old man to make it a more interesting or 'pull-on-your-heart-strings' story. To anyone who thinks different read the last page of Dad's book, a member of the crew's last letter home and see if it doesn't break your heart.
