Posted on August 4, 2013 by katha12013. The text I have chosen is Alexander's outing (Allen, 1992), a delightful story of a mother duck and her five ducklings that set off one fine sunny day with the mother duck admonishing 'stay close, take care'. Alexander is the least attentive of the five ducklings, so it is no surprise when he falls down a hole in the road, out of reach of everyone.

Alexander's Outing follows a duckling who always seems to straggle behind even with his mother's warning to stay close. Alexander lands himself in a bit of trouble when he falls down a deep dark hole. Lucky for him there is a very kind group of people who make a plan to rescue him. This story emphasises the importance of always listening to the group leader and staying close to the group.
